DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

New corrected drawings in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in this application because reference characters not clearly legible and legends too small (figure 1); and handwritten letters are poor quality and hard to read (figure 2) . Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsman outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The requirement for corrected drawings will not be held in abeyance.

EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Douglas H. GoldHush on 9/28/2005.

The application has been amended as follows:

1. (amended) A system for policing traffic of packet transfer in a hub, said system comprising:

a first circuit,

Art Unit: 2661

a second circuit connected to said first circuit;

a first data line connecting said first circuit to said second circuit, wherein data is transmitted within and between said first circuit and said second circuit across said first data line;

a second data line connecting said first circuit to said second circuit, wherein data is transmitted within and between said first circuit and said second circuit across said second data line;

a monitor that monitors said first data line to determine when an amount of data being transmitted on said first data line within said first circuit has reached a threshold;

a blocking mechanism that prevents data from being transmitted on said first data line from said first circuit to said second circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold; and a transmitter that transmits data across said second data line, from first ports on said first circuit, to third ports on said second circuit, when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold.

2. (amended) The system as recited in claim 1, wherein said first circuit includes said first ports connected to first data line stations and second ports connected to second data line stations, and wherein said second circuit includes said third ports connected to first data line stations, and fourth ports connected to second data line stations, wherein data is transmitted on said first data line from said first ports on said first circuit to said third ports on said second circuit.

3. (amended) The system as recited in claim 1, wherein said monitor monitors said first data line to determine when an amount of data being transmitted on said first data line within said second circuit has reached a said threshold, and wherein said blocking mechanism prevents data from being transmitted on said first data line from said second circuit to said first circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached a said threshold.

4. (cancelled).

7. (amended) A method for controlling data flow, said method comprising the steps of:

transmitting data across a first data line from a first circuit to a second circuit and within said first and second circuits;

transmitting data across a second data line from said first circuit to said second circuit and within said first and second circuits;

monitoring said first data line to determine when an amount of data being transmitted within said first circuit on said first data line has reached a threshold; preventing data from being transmitted on said first data line from said first circuit to said second circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold; and transmitting data across said second data line from said first circuit to said second circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold.

Art Unit: 2661

9. (cancelled).

14. (amended) A system for controlling data flow, said system comprising:

first transmitting means for transmitting data across a first data line from a first circuit to a second circuit;

second transmitting means for transmitting data across a second data line from said first circuit to said second circuit;

monitoring means for monitoring said first data line to determine when an amount of data being transmitted within said first circuit on said first data line has reached a threshold;

first preventing means for preventing data from being transmitted on said first data line from said first circuit to said second circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold; and third transmitting means for transmitting data across said second data line from said first circuit to said second circuit when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold.

16. (cancelled).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-3, 5-8, 10-15, 17-20 are allowed.

The following is an Examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Claims 1-3, 5-8, 10-15, 17-20 are considered allowable since when reading the claims in light of the specification, none of the references of record alone or in combination disclose or suggest the combination of limitations specified in the independent claims including a transmitter that transmits or transmitting data across said second data line, from said first ports on said first circuit, to said third ports on said second circuit, when the amount of data being transmitted on said first data line has reached said threshold, as specified in claims 1, 7, and 14.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
